

Workshop from Home with Be Rose

5/20/26

Q&A Transcript

what brand of stain was the "6236 chartreuse"?

She finds Mason stains from here: <https://www.masoncolor.com/mason-stains>

Kaitlynne Flanigan

When I have read about making colored clay, many websites describe using 8-10% by volume? It sounds like that is overkill?

live answered

Jennifer Harnetty

all your glazes are food safe , also in Europe ? I am from Belgium and even Mayco are sometimes considered so so

live answered

Kaitlynne Flanigan

Where does one find inclusion stains?

Most ceramics suppliers sell inclusion stains. But if your local one doesn't you can try online stores like Big Ceramics Store or Clay King, etc.

Jennifer Harnetty

what is casting slip?

It is a liquid clay body. It is used to cast certain pieces from plaster molds. She uses Laguna Clay Company's Miller 16 porcelain clay body.

Kaitlynne Flanigan

do you slip cast your handles?

live answered

Kaitlynne Flanigan

I love that sieve! Was there a link posted where it was purchased?

live answered

Jennifer Harnetty

Blue bucket tools has them

live answered

Kaitlynne Flanigan

Do you match the casting slip to the clay body?

live answered

Jennifer Harnetty

It was Blue Bucket Tools that had the sieve that attaches to several types of containers.

live answered

Jennifer Harnetty

how many weeks can you keep the clay in the plastic bags ?

live answered

Kaitlynne Flanigan

Can you repeat the name of the clear glaze you are using from Glazy ?

It is Campana Clear. This recipe is also provided in the PDF handout.

Kaitlynne Flanigan

Maybe you said this in the beginning because I missed the first 5 mins. Wondering if the stamps are the same clay body as the mug so they shrink the same and stay attached well when fired.

Yes, these are the same clay body. She has just colored this clay that she is attaching.

Kaitlynne Flanigan

I'm seeing her much more clearly on the view that is not the overhead view. If she could show both it would be great. It might just be my computer.

live answered

Kaitlynne Flanigan

Whatever you did, it's much better! Thanks!

live answered

Kaitlynne Flanigan

How much clay do you use for one of those mugs?

live answered

Jennifer Harnetty

do you sand your pieces after bisqueing?

live answered

Jennifer Harnetty

when doing the inlay, is this piece bisqued or is it just bone dry?

live answered

Jennifer Harnetty

Have you tried underglazing the petals instead of coloring the clay? Does it make a similar effect?

live answered

Jennifer Harnetty

Do you use a liner glaze on the inside of the mugs?

Have you ever thrown with the colored clay? Does it behave the same if used thicker than just using it as stickers?

so we lost audio after "the blue is going to pull and drip into ____"

it was a real good workshop, bravo !

Thank you Be!!

Beautiful! Thanks for a great workshop Be!!

THANKS !!

I was so excited. I thought it landed on me. So sad. I absolutely Loved this. Thank you

